CARDINAL RATTI ELECTED POPE; ADOPTS THE NAME OF PIUS XI

Isan Italian 60 Years Old Favoring Reconciliation Between Vatican and Italian Government—Choice is Made on Seventh Ballot.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Ratti, archbishop of Milan, was today elected pope of the Roman Catholic Church on the seventh ballot. He is an Italian and is understood to favor reconciliation between the Vatican and the state.

Shortly after 12 o'clock the new pontiff—Pope Pius XI as he will be formally crowned—stepped upon the Vatican balcony fronting St. Peter's Square. The vast crowd which filled the courtyard knelt in reverence to receive the papal blessing. The Italian soldiers presented arms during the ceremony.

Throughout the morning great crowds waited expectantly in St. Peter's Square. As the noon hour drew near, all eyes were strained upon the Sistine Chapel chimney. Shortly after 11:30 o'clock, a thin whisp of smoke emerged from the chimney. There was a hush, for the general expectation was that it would turn to an oily black, the signal of no election. On the contrary, it continued a light gray.

Immediately a great shout went up and the crowd made a rush forward to get as close as possible to the balcony upon which it is the ancient custom for the new pontiff to appear, and bless the assembled multitude.

Announcement was made that the new pontiff had chosen the name of Pius XI and he will be known by this title so long as he occupies the chair of St. Peter. Each cardinal in the conclave is supposed to have chosen in his own mind, the name he will be officially known by, so that in the event of election, he can make it known at once.

It is customary, immediately after the announcement of an election, for three cardinals to lead the new sovereign pontiff into the robing room adjacent to the Sistine Chapel, where three sets of Papal robes are laid out. One is of large size, one medium and one is small. The variations are made so that no matter what the stature of the new sovereign pontiff, he will find robes to fit him.

In olden times, there were elaborate rites and ceremonies through which the new pope was conducted following his elevation to the highest and holiest office of the Roman Church. But of these the only one that remains is the coronation.

The new pontiff will be crowned within the next week and cardinals, now en route for Rome, who were unable to get here in time for the conclave election, will be at hand for the elaborate coronation rites.

The pope's date their pontificates from the day they assume their tiara rather than from the date of election by the conclave cardinals. When the pope is crowned, he receives also the famous fisherman's ring, which bears the great seal of the Vatican, and is symbolic of the wearer's high office. It is not removed until death when it is broken up and remelted. The chief ceremonies of the Papal coronation take place in the Sistine Chapel, where the elections are conducted.

London, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Ratti, archbishop of Milan, has been elected pope, succeeding the late Benedict XV, according to a Reuters despatch from Rome early this afternoon.

Cardinal Ratti was a candidate of the so-called "peace" party which favors reconciliation between the Vatican and the Italian state.

Before the conclave began last Thursday, the name of Cardinal Ratti had been mentioned more or less conspicuously as the candidate of the reconciliation faction, headed by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state. Cardinal Gasparri and his adherents pledged themselves to carry out the political policy of the late Benedict XV which was to renew friendly relations with the Italian without impairing the international prestige of the church.

It was understood that Cardinal M. M. archbishop of Pisa, was favored by the "non-reconciliation" faction, led by Cardinal Merry Del Val.

For some time Cardinal Ratti was envoy of the Vatican at Warsaw, Poland.

By taking the name of Pius, the new sovereign pontiff has shown his preference for a designation that has been a favorite with occupants of the chair of St. Peter. The pontiff before Benedict XV was Pius X. He succeeded the Vatican from 1903 to 1914.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The papal legation had not been officially advised at an early hour this morning of the selection of Cardinal Ratti to succeed the late Pope Benedict XV.

Some surprise was manifested by officers of the legation when press despatches were communicated to them reporting Cardinal Ratti's election.

Cardinal Ratti was one of the least well-known prelates who participated in the conclave balloting at the Vatican, although he was well known in

CHARLES PROPER TO TRY AGAIN

This Time Applies for Permission to Operate From Cottrell to Kingston—Application Will be Found in Advertising Columns of Freeman Tonight.

Charles Proper of Rosendale will make still another attempt to operate a bus line, and in the advertising columns of tonight's Freeman will be found his application which will be filed with the common council. Last year the sessions of the common council were enlivened with Mr. Proper's applications for permission to operate over certain of the city streets, for as fast as he was turned down by the city fathers he would file another application.

After being turned down several times Mr. Proper decided to change lawyers and retained Frank W. Brooks, who announced to the aldermen following one of the usual sessions of the council that Mr. Proper would file a new petition every month until the council granted permission.

Finally as the year 1921 was drawing to a close the aldermen evidently feeling that Mr. Proper had tried his "darndest" they rather surprised him by granting him the asked for permission. Then the matter rested with the public service commission, which recently rejected the petition on the ground that the proposed Proper route was being cared for by the present bus line.

This fact has not daunted Mr. Proper, however, and he will again appear before the common council with a new application in which he has laid out a different route from the one he at first desired. The new route starts at the Four Corners at Cottrell, touches Lawrenceville, Binnewater and Whiteport and enters Kingston over the Boulevard and down Broadway to the Strand terminal.

According to the law all that the common council can do is to either grant or refuse permission to operate a bus line over the city streets. Unless Mr. Proper obtains the required consent he can not appear before the public service commission.

STOLEN CARS OWNERS FOUND

State Troopers and New York Police Seek Leaders of "110th Street Gang" Believed to Have Stolen Cars Sold in Highland.

The discovery of twenty-seven stolen motor cars in Highland, sold through Earl Rhodes, a garage owner, led the police to the vicinity of Cathedral Parkway, New York city, Sunday in search of the "110 street gang" of automobile thieves. The numbers of the machines found in Highland had been changed, and all of them are said to have been sold by one man in New York. Whether he is a member of the gang or a "fence" is not known at this time. Most of the cars were of expensive manufacture and none of them were sold for more than $500 cash.

Rhodes, who was ill at his home, denied knowledge of any illegality in the sales. No charges have been made against him, the police said.

Corporal James J. Montgomery and Trooper T. J. Morgan, of the state police, with Detective Michael F. Rogers, of the Automobile Underwriters' Bureau, have traced the ownership of some of the stolen cars. A car purchased by John Schulte, of the grape juice plant in Highland, was found to have belonged to Abraham Seintz, of No. 1980 Prospect avenue, the Bronx. It was stolen October 15.

Another car found stored in Rhodes' garage was stolen December 13 from Dr. Anthony Arcobosco of No. 207 West Tenth street. A car belonging to Dr. John J. O'Brien, of No. 418 West Fifteenth street, which was stolen December 7 in West Thirty-fourth street, was bought recently by Judson Van Vleet, one of Highland's prominent citizens.

Miss Ida M. Schneider of Highland, bought a handsome touring car from Rhodes. It was found to have been stolen March 16, 1921, in West New York, N. J. The owner was Nicola Arizona, of No. 21 West Twenty-third street.

Two more cars found in Rhodes' garage are believed to have been stolen, but so far the police have been unable to locate the owners. It was said that at least twenty more have been found.

The state police have communicated with the New York Police Department, and the automobile squad has set about to round up the "110 Street Gang," which, it is said, makes its headquarters in garages in the neighborhood of Cathedral Parkway.

Poughkeepsie and Highland, the police believe, are only two of the outlets for the thousands of cars stolen in New York. Many are disposed of in Philadelphia and Boston, but of late the activity of the automobile thieves in those cities has obliged the thieves to turn to less conspicuous markets.

W. J. Hough Out Sign. A large electric illuminated sign has been erected at the corner of Fair and John streets, extending from the Kingston Opera House for the Western Union Telephone Company which has its office around the corner on John street.

STRIKE PLUNGES BERLIN INTO CITY OF DESPAIR

Panic of Citizens Results From Lack of Coal, Food and Light and Prices Soar—Strike Wave Spreads but Government Sticks to Repressive Policy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Feb. 6.—Berlin today is in the midst of the blackest period it has known since the Kapp revolution. Despite the mayor's reassuring statement that the food situation is not endangered by the strikes on the railways and in the municipal services, the situation in the poor quarters resembled the panic days of war time food shortage.

Long queues of frightened people who were convinced that they face starvation in a time of bitter cold, were formed before food shops everywhere. Their panic was increased when the bakeries, handicapped by the shortage of coal, soon had exhausted their bread stocks.

Prices have jumped sky-rocket fashion under the pressure of frantic buying for hoarding purposes.

Sunday was a day of bleakness and despair. The whole city, including theatres, cinemas, restaurants and hospitals, was plunged into impenetrable darkness. Doctors were unable to carry out even the simplest operations.

News reached Berlin during the night that the gigantic wave of the strike movement had reached Saxony where the miners are joining the strike in sympathy with the railway men.

Workers of South Germany and Wurttemberg in a manifesto, urge the government to resume negotiations with the rail strikers, threatening that otherwise they will not be able to maintain their present attitude of neutrality.

The government as shown by the cabinet sessions and inter-party conferences, is still determined to stick to its policy of firmness and energetic action. Government leaders profess confidence that they will be able to handle the situation by establishing emergency traffic and they are unwilling to negotiate with the strikers.

The Independent Socialists, hitherto neutral, are today inclined to support the strikers' demands. This has widened the gap between the Independents and the majority Socialists and adds to the difficulties of the government.

MANSION HOUSE THOUGHT UNSAFE

Board of Public Works Receives Report of Inspection Made by Fire Department—Hotel in Old Days Was One of Most Famous Along the River—Now Factory and Garage.

After thoroughly inspecting the Mansion House at the corner of Broadway and Strand on Saturday the fire department today filed with the board of public works a communication in which it was stated that the building was believed to be in an unsafe condition. It is expected that the board of public works will take the matter up and have an investigation made.

The Mansion House in its day was one of the most famous hotels along the Hudson river. Back in the old days of the stage coach it was known from Albany to New York. As the years passed the hotel began to lose its popularity and has not been used for hotel purposes for the past eight years.

At the present time the lower floor is occupied by Smith's garage and the second floor by a waist factory. This factory, which employs about twenty girls, closed down Saturday. When it will reopen is not known. The third floor is vacant.

It is said that the investigation of the fire department showed that the rear of the building had settled. From the Strand side of the building it can be seen where the rear end of the hotel has sagged several inches and the windows are out of plumb.

It is likely that if the building, after an investigation, is found to be unsafe the owner will be given a certain length of time to place it in a safe condition.

Quayle Lecture Tonight.

Since those having in charge the Bishop Quayle lecture on "Abraham Lincoln, the First American," to be given at the high school auditorium tonight, have arranged to have an ample number of extra trolley cars in waiting at the close of the lecture, no one need hesitate about attending the lecture because of the inclement weather. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock.

JOHNSON'S BOUTS, AS ADVERTISED, ILLEGAL

So Rules Attorney General Newton—No Application For License—Police Can't Act Until Law is Actually Violated.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 6.—State Attorney General Newton today advised the chief of police of Kingston that Jack Johnson's boxing exhibition in connection with his vaudeville show, advertised to be given in a Kingston theatre tonight, is forbidden under the state boxing law.

Johnson was scheduled to appear in four fast rounds and a strong man's act.

The attorney general points out that it is a crime for any person to engage in boxing or even in a sparring match, where an admission is charged, unless all the participants are licensed by the state athletic association.

The former heavyweight champion had planned to stage his performance without consulting the state athletic commission, because the attorney general learned from Chairman William Muldoon, that no application had been made for a license.

Johnson is booked at the Orpheum Theatre for three days starting today.

It is understood that the police will carefully watch Johnson perform. If his boxing violates the law, then, and only then, can they take action.

In some of the towns visited, it is learned, Johnson put on a kind of clownish boxing exhibition, without rounds, seconds, etc., which did not violate the law.

Conference Closes With Signing of Five Treaties

Simple Session Lasting but One Hour and Five Minutes Ends "Greatest Step in History Towards World Peace"—President Addresses Delegates.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Continental Hall, Washington, Feb. 6.—The Washington conference passed into history today at 11:15 a. m., with the echoes of its praise as "the greatest step in history toward world peace" ringing in the ears of the chief figures in the three-months' drama.

The end of the long and arduous grind was simple and lacking in the dramatic tenseness that might be expected to accompany such a momentous event in the world's history. It was very much like a group of tired and happy workmen laying down their tools after the whistle had blown to signalize the end of the day's work.

The final session of the conference itself was short and extremely business-like, signing of the five treaties was begun immediately after the conference opened at 10:10 a. m., and it was completed in half an hour. Then President Harding took the center of the stage and briefly bespoke his praise and gratitude at the achievements of the meeting.

There was a solemn hush when the applause that greeted his remarks had died away. Then the Rev. John S. Abernathy, pastor of President Harding's church, said a brief benediction, asking Divine blessing on the works of the parley.

Amid the rustle and stir of the audience that always marks the end of a prayer, boomed out the voice of Chairman Hughes:

"The conference is adjourned sine die."

And that was all. The whole session lasted an hour and five minutes. It was a brilliant assemblage that saw the finale of the conference. Scattered through the packed galleries were cabinet members, justices of the supreme court of the United States, members of the house and senate and virtually the entire diplomatic corps of Washington. The hopes were jammed with women.

Every seat in the great square room was filled at 9:45, the spectators having been warned that none could enter after that hour. The center of the room was filled with chattering, laughing diplomats. The tension that marked previous sessions was gone, and the joy felt at the end of the long drag was apparent in every face. Even the solemn, owl-like Chinese and Japanese joined in the light banter and small talk that occupied the center of the stage.

There was a tremendous burst of applause as Secretary Hughes entered at 10:05. It was 10:09 when his gavel fell, opening the session. Secretary of State Hughes lost no time in getting to business. His gavel fell at 10:09 and at 10:10 he said he was happy to announce that the Shantung treaty had been signed on Saturday.

"We will now sign the other treaties," he said, "in alphabetical order—America, British Empire, Belgium, China, France, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, and Portugal. It is requested that each of the delegates sign all five treaties at the same time. The American delegates will begin signing."

Amid tremendous applause Secretary Hughes then led the way around the big table to a smaller table in the center of the U. S. which reposed the copies of the treaties. The other Americans followed in single file. Root, Lodge and Underwood. Secretary Hughes sat down at the table, dipped his pen and paused a moment to scan the first document. Then he signed with a flourish. The same procedure was followed on the other four treaties, the momentary pause preceding each signature.

The whole operation lasted less than three minutes. Senator Lodge followed Hughes, and then Underwood and Root were the last of the Americans to sign.

Applause burst forth as Elihu Root finished and rose from the chair and the other American delegates stood grouped about the table. The work of signing, so far as the Americans were concerned, was finished at 10:18, and the whole ceremony had lasted less than 10 minutes.

"Belgium," called Secretary Hughes when he had resumed his chairman's seat. There was only one delegate from Belgium—Baron Carlier de Maréenne—and he quickly attached his name.

"British Empire," called Hughes, and the tall form of A. J. Balfour arose amid applause. He led the trek around the horseshoe table, followed by his five colleagues.

The signers were assisted by Basil Miles, secretary of the conference, who stood by the table, handing out the treaties one by one to the signers, and then blotting their signatures when finished.

Mr. Balfour, the tall, distinguished veteran of every big international conference in the last half century, was the first of the Britishers to sign. He was followed by Lord Lee of Fareham, who in turn gave way to Saurat, the Indian whose turbaned head never fails to evoke a whisper in the galleries.

Sir Auckland Geddes followed the Indian then came Borden of Canada, Pearce of Australia and Balfour of New Zealand.

The movie men had been allowed to set up their cameras just outside the railing which separates the delegates from the audience, and there was a spatter of eye lights and a blinding flash of light as an accompaniment to each delegation's signing. The movie men meanwhile cranked industriously.

There was renewed applause when China signed. Dr. Sze was first, then Dr. Wellington Koo, and then Dr. Wang. Their Oriental faces were wreathed in smiles at the obsequiousness of the audience.

France followed. M. Sarraut signing amid more applause. He bowed his acknowledgment in the general direction of the spectators as his colleague, Ambassador Jusserand, affixed his signature. They were the only two French delegates left, Briand and Viviani having long since gone home.

"Italy," called Hughes, and Senator Schauer led the way to the table. He ran his fingers through his spade-like hair in a seemingly meditative fashion as he took up his pen. Ambassador Ricci, with a flaming red carnation in his lapel, followed and then Signor Albertini.

There was a burst of applause that lasted nearly a minute when Hughes called sharply "Japan."

Hiroo Kato, the diminutive frail-looking little dynamo, signed first, then Ambassador Shidehara and lastly M. Hanihara, his round face wreathed in a grin which made him look all the more like a grinning amiable Buddha.

President Harding appeared in the lobby as the Japanese signed and the audience lost interest in the show around the little green table. The president passed into an ante-room and waited until the Dutch and Portuguese delegates, Jonker Van Bokland and Viscount d'Almeida, quickly signed.

The whole ceremony of signing the treaties lasted half an hour. Then President Harding took the center of the stage.

WOMAN HIT INTRUDER IN HOUSE WITH IRON BAR

It Happened in Port Ewen Friday—Reported Bridge Holdups.

According to street rumors there have been a number of people held up on the Esopus side of the Rondout creek bridge, but no complaints have been lodged with Judge Henry E. McKenzie, police justice of Port Ewen, and he stated upon the telephone this morning that he had heard nothing about any of the alleged holdups.

Friday evening while Mrs. Knoles and her six year old daughter were alone in their home on Canal street, Port Ewen, two young men visited the house and kicked in the panels of the front door and entered the house. She struck one of the intruders over the head with an iron bar, and the pair "beat it."

The matter was reported to Judge McKenzie by Mrs. Knoles. She said that as it was dark she was unable to positively identify the pair, but they are thought to be two would-be hard characters of that village who have been in trouble before, but who were fortunate to escape from the grip of the law through the leniency of the courts.

Since then Mrs. Knoles has secured a revolver and will use it in preference to the iron bar.

Auto Herded Chilled.

Charles G. Tompkins of Catskill reported to police headquarters that his auto had struck a little girl named Levine of Newkirk avenue, at Hasbrouck avenue and St. Mary's street. He claimed that the child ran out in front of his car and that he swerved to the right and the girl was struck by the right rear fender.

SCHRYVER'S NEW QUARTERS READY

Has Made Modern Motor Halls and Service Station at New Location on North Front Street and Expects Record Season.

The George J. Schryver Motor Car Company, which for years was located on Railroad avenue, has been moved to 71-73 North Front street, where Mr. Schryver has fitted out one of the finest show rooms and garages in the city. The new show rooms and garage are located in the building which until purchased by him was known as the Ideal Garage. Since taking possession Mr. Schryver has altered the building so as to afford show rooms for the Overland, Willys-Knight, Haynes and Paterson cars for which he has the local agency.

A driveway in the center of the building between the two offices at either end has been closed up and the entire upper part of the building made into one show room with the office in the lower corner of the building. The entrance to the show room is through the office with large double doors in the rear of the show room to provide entrance for cars. The show room has been painted and decorated and equipped with a ladies' rest room. Ample space is provided to exhibit the various models of cars which he handles.

In the rear of the office and show rooms is the garage where new and second hand cars are kept. The garage machine shop, where all kinds of general repairing is done, is located in a two story building in the rear, detached from the main building.

In the rear of the office is located a stock room for small parts and on the second floor is the stock room where all spare parts for cars are kept.

Besides doing a general garage business Mr. Schryver will keep a full line of grease, oils, tires and motor supplies. Two gasoline pumps have been installed on the curb to take care of the business so that no one will have to wait while one car is being filled. One pump is of the new electric visible type.

A clever and convenient place is provided for the oil sales. Alongside the door is a small closet with a small closet door opening out doors through which the oil measures may be filled from tanks located on the second floor, without coming into the garage. This clever idea will save steps for the garage attendant and will save time for the motorists as well.

Mr. Schryver is very enthusiastic over business conditions at the present time and confidently expects the summer season to be one of the best in the motor car field. During the past few weeks Mr. Schryver has sold a number of cars, two Overland sedans were delivered to customers Saturday afternoon. Since locating on North Front street Mr. Schryver has found business conditions good and says he is waiting for the summer season, feeling confident that he will do the biggest business in the history of the firm.

Your Gas and Electric Company Bonds A Good Investment

In a recent publication by the Babson Institute, public utility securities are characterized as follows:

"Good public utility securities combine the attractive features of railroad bonds, the liberal return of industrials, without so many of their speculative features, and the fundamental securities—public necessities—of the municipal bonds."

"Very interesting comparison has been published by the New York Evening Post. Over a period of 30 years (and a longer period cannot be fairly used owing to the recent development of the public utilities) the following is shown: The risks of receivership in industrials is $2.07 per annum per $100.00 of securities outstanding. With railroads, it is $1.84 and in the case of public utilities it is 37 cents. This last figure is only 5 cents above that for National Banks."

You will note that the 7 per cent Ten Year Guaranteed Bonds that your Gas and Electric Company is offering are in the same class with the utilities as that outlined above. That is, they combine fundamental securities with liberal returns.

"NEGRO" AND "NIGGER."

A discussion in the New York World once more brings forward the fact that "nigger" is not a corruption of "negro," but an older term still very widely employed to mean no more than the terms, "red man" and "yellow man," as applied to the Indians and Chinese. In the English-speaking world—outside of the United States—"nigger" is in common use with reference to all the darker races of the British empire. Even blacked white men performing as negro minstrels are called "white niggers." The character giving the title to Conrad's novel, "The Nigger of the Narcissus," was a West Indian negro. Conrad would have departed from general usage and seemed unnatural or affected if he had written "The Negro of the Narcissus." In the United States, "colored person" and "colored people," though meant to be kindly and considerate, are pointless terms in themselves because the ruddy whites are really more colored than the blacks.

A negro—employing the Spanish word for "black"—admits in a letter to the World that "nigger" is the older and originally a non-opprobrious term, but persists in employing "colored people." He gives his age as but 19 years and surprisingly states: "I have read more than fifty volumes on the history of my race during the past twelve months," which would be an average of one a week. He does not back up his boast by mentioning any of the more than fifty volumes, but possibly one of them may have been the brief definition in the Century Dictionary, which reads: "Nigger ••• a black man, a Negro. Not, as generally supposed, a corruption of 'Negro,' but regularly developed from the earlier form Neger, which is derived through the French from the Spanish Negro, from which the English Negro is derived directly. Nigger is more English in form than Negro and was formerly and to some extent still is used without opprobrious intent."

STATE COPS SEIZE AUTOS BOUGHT BY HIGHLAND FOLKS.

Five automobiles recently purchased by Highland men have been placed in Smith's garage there by state troopers pending an investigation of their origin on suspicion that the cars had been stolen from others before their sale in Highland. The fact that one man had disposed of a number of second-hand cars in Highland within a short time caused the state police to begin an investigation. Among those who bought cars and the make of the machines are: John Schulte, Studabaker; Earl Rhoades, Studabaker; Fred Snyder, Chandler; J. Van Vleet, Hudson; Lott & Deane, real estate dealers; Kissel Kar. It is believed that the Highland man who sold the cars did so in good faith and that he knew nothing of the past history of the machines.

In Her Wedding Gown.

There was printed in the New York Tribune Saturday an excellent picture of Katherine B. Sharpe in her wedding gown, she having been married a week ago to Albro Newton Dana at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Ira Davenport, in New York city. Mrs. Dana is the daughter of Savary B. Sharpe of this city and New York.

HELICOR-Q Tablets are best by test.
Try this simple experiment:
1. Drop a C. & Q. Tablet in a glass of clear water.
2. Immediately the tablet begins disintegrating or "foaming up."
3. In 10 seconds the medicinal properties are thoroughly mixed with water.

Then, HELICOR-Q Tablets act immediately, give relief within 15 minutes and begin checking Colds and La Grippe long before ordinary tablets, by actual test, are absorbed by the stomach juices. To prove this, subject after test C. & Q. Tablets to the test, and observe that in most instances no hour or more is required for complete disappearance.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE FLOOR

"I get so tired of hearing people say it, as they know it won't come to pass," said the floor.

"What are you talking of?" asked the door.

"Whenever people speak of having been embarrassed or having felt shy or having had something out of the ordinary happen they always say that they were so embarrassed that they almost went through the floor."

"I wish I could tell them once and for all time that they can't go through me because they are embarrassed or for any other reason."

"They think they can sink right down through me! Indeed! Well, I'd like to tell them they can't."

"I don't suppose you really need to do that," said the door, "for surely they understand."

"No one ever has gone through you because of embarrassment and surely they understand that. What they doubtless mean is that they felt so embarrassed that they almost did something quite impossible."

"It is only a very extreme way of having of speaking."

"Perhaps," said the floor, "but then I'd like to tell them what I think. I really would like to do that, door."

"I think they know," said the door. Now the floor was the floor of a bird shop and the floor was used to having many people pass over it, for so many people came in to shop.

"I should think," said the door, "that the birds would think it was strange, after they were taken home."

"For a Few Moments."

by anyone who had bought them here, to see anyone sit down quietly.

"For how people do rush by this shop. They are always rushing and hurrying. They are always dashing some place or other, and they go by—oh, so many of them—and all of them hurrying."

"It is true that some of them do stop here and stand still for a few moments and look at the birds and the parakeet and the monkeys."

"But still, they do not seem to be quiet for very long. They always go rushing on again."

"I can't understand this rushing that creatures do," said the floor.

"Of course I can't understand it very well, either," said the door, "though I do enjoy going back and forth a bit myself."

"I don't," said the floor. "Once I'm in a certain spot I stay."

"I'm not discontented. I'm quite satisfied. I'm a floor and I like to stay still."

"I don't want to go to one place and then to another. I have no such desire at all."

"I see these people rushing and I feel them hurrying over me, and I say to myself:

"How thankful I am that I am a floor. I have no desire to hurry."

"To stay in one place suits me."

"Yes, door, there are some creatures who always want to be moving about. They go to one place and then to another. They aren't satisfied staying still and behaving quietly."

"But the floor is satisfied. Nor does the floor wish to see what is going on."

"The windows like to see what their neighbors are doing and who is walking down the street. But not the floor. The floor doesn't bother about anything else."

"And the floor doesn't mind if it is trampled upon. The floor is uncomplaining and amiable."

"My only complaint is that I don't like people to say that they almost went through me with embarrassment, because they couldn't do it, and they know it. It is ridiculous of them to say they almost did such a thing. They couldn't do it at all, at all."

"The chairs don't mind being set upon, but the floor is the best of all because it doesn't mind being trampled upon and it is always so contented to stay where it is put and not go rushing about wildly all the time."

Mad Experience.

The class was particularly alert that afternoon and Miss Scraggen beamed. But, as is often the case, when the teacher relaxed her iron rule the children began to get out of hand.

"Now, Willie," said Miss Scraggen, "if you had four pennies and Jamie and five, and you took his and put them to yours, what would that make?"

Willie glanced at Jamie, a big-boned, aggressive-chinned Scots lad.

"Trouble!" he said, with conviction.

CAN DO WONDERS IN CANOE

Eskimos Are Literally Part of the Frail Craft Which They Have Named a "Kayak."

Built of sealskin, with the fur inside, stretched over a framework of wood, the Eskimo canoe—called a "kayak"—is only about ten feet long, and often not two feet wide at its widest part, tapering "to nothing" at both ends. The greatest width of the kayak is at the middle. Here there is a combing which slightly rises above the deck. The rest of the deck, save this hole just large enough to admit of the passage of the body of a man, is covered with sealskin.

When the Eskimo goes out in a kayak, he puts on a special seal-skin, waterproof shirt over his regular clothing. With very great care he steps into the kayak, sliding his feet over the tender bottom until he is seated on the wooden seat which is only the thickness of the wood above the bottom. Then he draws over the combing the end of his shirt, which tightly fits the combing part of the kayak.

Experts of Greenland learn to turn a somersault in a canoe and come up again on even keel, an exchange states. But the best of the Eskimos of Greenland are not content with merely being able to right the kayak when it overturns. They practice until they are able to paddle the kayak in such a way that they shoot ahead on their course even as they turn that dangerous somersault in the sea.

Doubtful Ending.

"Has your story a happy ending?"

"Well, that depends on the view-point."

"What do you mean?"

"Some might call it a happy ending and some might not. The lovers got married in the last chapter."

HEYLIGER GIVES IN SPIRING TALK

At Assembly at High School—Part Played by Reading in Forming Boys' Character and Ambition.

William Heyliger, author, lecturer and a member of the staff of "The American Boy," addressed the high school students and visitors at assembly this morning, saying in part:

What reading did to Jim Page is one of the stories told by William Heyliger, whom as the author of some twenty books for boys and a member of the editorial staff of the American Boy magazine has studied for years the question of what reading does to boys.

Just for an example of the effect of reading upon your mental machinery," said Mr. Heyliger, "take the case of Jim Page. Jim wanted to be a big business man. He wanted to make money enough for a happy, comfortable home, and the kind of car that runs without even a purr, and a month's vacation in the woods each year. Maybe that's all Jim would have told you about.
But he wanted more. He wanted to be a man big enough so that he would be a power in his community
—so that men would listen to what he had to say because it was worth while. Deep down in the bottom of his heart, he wanted still more. He wanted a voice in the way things were run in his state and in the nation—he didn't want to sit back and let other men run some of the most important things in his life. He wanted an active part in making the wheels of the world go round—
a chance to keep them from crushing any one—to see that they ran smooth and true.

"Well, that's a good deal about
Jim. But I want you to know him.
Some people think he was an exceptional boy. I don't. There are a lot of boys who are thinking just as clear and straight and far as Jim ever did, and they'll make just as good if they have the advantage of the right mental pictures.

"Jim made his own. You see he liked to read—maybe not so well as he liked to swim or play football,
but, after all, you can't compare such things. Each has its own place. Anyway, Jim and books and magazines were good friends. And presently he found that he was always making pictures when he was reading or thinking about things he had read.

"Queer how these pictures linked the things he was reading about with the things he wanted to do, no matter how far apart they seemed. A story about the old Romans would set him to thinking about what it would mean if every one were physically fit, and the first thing he knew, his mental picture of the Roman baths would be shading into a picture of a big outdoor swimming pool that could be built in the park in his own town at comparatively little cost if a lot of the men and boys would turn in and help do the work.

"Or he'd lose himself in a tale of a thousand years ago in medieval France, get so deep in the story that he could hear the hoof beats of galloping horses and the clanking of swords against armor, then the next he'd find himself picturing the business men of the country as modern knights leading a heroic charge against the evils led by waste and carelessness and inefficiency.

"Just one hour's reading about travel in South America would give him endless pictures of himself going to South America to learn trade conditions. His mind could make these pictures at a two-forty rate and didn't care how many reels of them it ran off. First he'd be on the south bound steamer, leaning over the rail, watching a school of porpoises; then he'd be down in the far-away office of some trade center; or he'd be walking down a sun-baked street in colorful Buenos Aires on his way to an elaborately courteous parley with the keen, subtle director of a Spanish business house. He'd get there, too, in the next picture and stand talking to the alert, white-clad South American—in perfect Spanish, with a genuine Castilian accent. Jim's imagination balked at nothing.

"Neither did Jim. That's why he has made his pictures real. That's why a big gray stone house in Jim's home town is pointed out as Mr.
Page's residence." That's why there is a big swimming-pool in the park, just like the one Jim dreamed of years ago, except that there are more heads bobbing around in it—even Jim's imagination couldn't show him how the boys would swarm to that pool. Jim is at the head of one of the few exporting houses that really understand conditions in South America. He has made that trip on the south bound steamer several times, and so have some of the men under him. Jim's word carries weight whenever he speaks. His influence has brought about legislation that has made things easier for a certain class of industrial workers and indirectly benefited the whole country.

"Men who admire Jim's business ability speak of his foresight, tell you how 'long-headed' he is. Some of the silver-tongued orators talk of his wonderful imagination. Speak of him as a 'man of vision.' That's all right.
These are all good terms. But, after all, they mean just one thing—Jim Page can make his own mental pictures. That's what reading did for him—gave him the ability to see time. Music will be provided by clearly big opportunities that others were passing by, led him on and up by glimpses of what lay beyond. First the ability to make your own pictures of the big things in life, then the will to make your pictures real—and any of you fellows can be another Jim Page."

Friends in Print.

"You can find friends in books and magazines who will become just as real to you as any flesh-and-blood friend who wears out his clothes and eats three exceptionally square meals a day. You'll find yourself hunting up these friends to see what they have to say about something you are planning to do. You'll argue with them, quote them, laugh at their jokes. You'll play on the same baseball team that they do—go shopping with them and dining and cuddling and swimming. One of the best things about a book friend is

ARE YOU A TARGET FOR INFLUENZA?

Be Prepared—Strengthen and Build Up Your Blood with Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

If you are not feeling your best—if you have that "always-tired" feeling, be careful of the influenza.
It is thin-blooded, anemic people that disease strikes first. It is the red corpuscles of the blood that fight disease and save you from sickness.

Fortify your blood—build it up with the pleasant tonic, Pepto-Mangan.

And should you be just recovering from influenza, Pepto-Mangan will build you up.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. In liquid or tablet form. No difference in medical properties.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure you get Gude's Pepto-Mangan.
Ask for it by the name and be sure the full name is on the package.

that he never gets peevish and goes off without you when you're slow;
he's always willing to wait for you,
always ready when you are. Moreover, he can get the upper hand of a desert island. He quarantines you a jolly good time under these friends of your reading.

"Now suppose one of these friends
of your reading is a fine, square, ambitious fellow who always plays the game and plays it hard—and you'll find any number of such friends in your reading. You're going to try to be like him, to meet situations as he would meet them. You're going to wonder what he would think of the way you live and the things you do
—and because he is a friend of yours, you'll work for his approval.
Perhaps consciously, perhaps unconsciously—but you'll do it.

Printer's Ink and Imagination.

"Odd that a little printer's ink spread over a clean white page
should change a fellow's whole life.
But it has done it time and again.
Just as Jack London's reading led him to success, so that of many other men has guided them to big things. Learn to make mental pictures, and both your friends in books and magazines and your friends in books and magazines will help you turn those dream pictures into real ones. A man's ability to do in limited only by his ability to see.
That's why hard-headed business men are looking for young men of imagination.

"I don't mean that reading provides you with a magic mental picture machine that will throw a ready-made picture, full of useful suggestions, before your eyes every time you face an emergency. That would be helpful, of course; but the thing reading does for you is something much bigger—more subtle, more powerful. It makes more valuable. It oils and polishes and read-justs and speeds up your mental machinery until you can make your own pictures. The fellow who can do this is on the road to success.

Digging Treasures From Print.

"When a fellow begins to realize what a book or magazine may do to him, he feels a sort of thrill every time he picks one up. Maybe this will be the one to hold the most precious treasure he'll ever find.
He knows he's going to dig it out for himself, but that's all right.
No sport beats treasure-digging?

"No one can stake out an exclusive claim in the greatest treasure fields of the world. Reading is open to all. The way to get your share is to take it. You can dig out whatever you want. Got an empty hour? Dig out a baseball story and enjoy yourself. Feeling down and out? Try Huckleberry Finn, and your treasure hunt will be full of chuckles.
Living in a pretty dull place? There are books to take you anywhere you want to go. Want friends? It's a poor story that won't bring you at least one worth having.

"And these are only some of the sub-treasures you'll uncover in your reading. Always as you dig, you'll be working toward the biggest treasure of all—the thing that will fire your imagination and lead you on to success. It may be a slow-kindling fire; it may be a quick blaze. That doesn't matter. Either kind lights up the mental pictures that make you a power in the world—for reading gives you the ability to dream dreams and see visions; it gives you the strength to weave those dreams and visions into your life. Try it and see.

HEBREW YOUNG PEOPLE PLAN DANCE AT ARMORY.

Members of the Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. are busily engaged with the arrangements for the first annual dance and entertainment to be given by these organizations on Washington's Birthday, February 22, at the state armory. As the aims of these associations are educational as well as social, the proceeds of the dance will go largely for an Americanization campaign. The arrangements are such that even those who do not dance will be assured of a delightful time. Music will be provided by Balfe's full orchestra of ten pieces.
Talented entertainers have been engaged. The officers in charge of the dance are: General chairman, J.
Epstein; publicity committee, Dr. B.
Schoen, David Weisburger, A. Katz and H. Klein. Miss T. Weisman is in charge of the refreshment committee; treasurer, Miss R. Mufson; secretary, Miss E. Stone; director, M.
J. Beck.

Poughkeepsie Mushrooms.

Joseph J. Cagney, former Mayor
D. B. Wilbur, E. W. Glacy and other well known Poughkeepsie men have formed a corporation to be known as "American Edibles, Inc.," to manufacture mushrooms and other edible products in the bridge city. It is capitalized at $500,000, and has taken over the plant of the former Hygienic Ice Company to convert it into a mushroom plant.

CRACK GYM TEAM HERE SATURDAY

Saturday evening, February 11, at 8:00 o'clock, the Springfield College gymnasium team will give an exhibition in the Kingston Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

For the past 15 years the Springfield College has produced a gymnasium team that has put on many exhibitions each year in Y. M. C. A.'s and colleges throughout the East. The team consists of 11 picked men, the cream of the college, and an accompanying pianist. For a number of consecutive years they have given very successful exhibitions at the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., which is the largest in the world. This year the team will travel as far west as Cleveland, Ohio, in response to calls from people desirous of seeing their famous exhibition.

Newburgh has had the Springfield College team give exhibitions for the past several years with, always, an enthusiastic audience attentively watching.

The program will consist of rhythmic drills, Swedish gymnastics, national costume dancing, gymnasium dancing, tumbling, advanced apparatus work on the high bar, the parallel bars, the "gym" horse, the flying rings and pyramid building on the parallel bars.

One of the feature numbers will be club swinging by Professor Levee, Judd, coach of the team, and former champion club swinger of Australia. Mr. Judd will give an exhibition, with illuminated clubs, which, when done by a crack swinger, is a beautiful sight to behold.

Over 300 seats have been reserved and, while no admission will be charged, the members of the association will have first preference in reserving seats up until 5 o'clock Thursday evening, February 9, after which time the general public will be allowed to secure seats.

Admission will be by ticket only. The men on the Springfield team are in training for physical directors for "Y's," colleges and schools throughout the country.

CELTICS PLAY HERE THURSDAY

At the State Armory two games will be staged this week. On Tuesday evening the Mohawk team will oppose the locals in a state league game and on Thursday evening the Original Celtics, claimants of the national championship, will struggle with the Morgenweck clan.

The seating capacity of the drill floor is enlarged by the addition of bleachers. Seats are being reserved and may be had for the Mohawk game. Already a large number have inquired about seats for the Celtic game. Starting Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and up until Thursday evening at 5 o'clock seats may be ordered and will be saved until that time.

The Celtic combination is a good drawing card in much larger cities than Kingston, as they win games or put up a good struggle on any basketball court, and they are widely known. A large number of fans are expected to witness the contest not only from this city but from neighboring cities.

If Boreman can score thirteen points playing with the Powers brothers team against the Celtics at Madison Square Garden, what will he do Thursday evening?

M'RIIL AFTER WESTON'S RECORD

The world's championship long distance walking record which now rests in Ulster county, where it is held by Edward Payson Weston of Plutarch, is likely to be taken to Kansas by Kirby McRill, a native of that state, who is now on a hike to New York, during which he may decide to pass through the county of the man whose belt he is seeking.

The story of McRill and what he would like to do to the Weston record is told by The New York World as follows:

Ever hear of Kirby McRill? No? Well, The World never did either until yesterday, but before long New York will know Mr. McRill and from what the Leavenworth, Kan., correspondent of this paper predicts, he is going to cause somewhat of a sensation when he gets here.

He is coming on foot. He will hike the whole distance. And you'll be able to tell him from the fact that he will be attired in evening clothes, will wear a high hat and will sport a cane. Not many New Yorkers do their long distance strolling in this make-up especially during the daylight hours. So nobody will have any difficulty in identifying the Kansan.

McRill lives on a place called "Nine-Mile-Farm," which is just that number of miles south of Leavenworth. He has plenty of money, owns his establishment, is the champion walker of his state and, to make his record still more shining, declares he has never been kissed. He is forty-five, a bachelor, and has a moustache much like that of Governor Whalen, our commissioner of plant and structures.

Just to show you how fond of walking Kirby McRill is, he hiked from Leavenworth to St. Louis recently to buy seven pairs of heavy breeches for his New York trip. He wears size 12, triple E, which are fair to middling, as shoe proportions go.

He walked to Chicago last fall, and while in a newspaper office there mentioned that he wouldn't object to accumulating a wife while on his journey. Immediately he was almost mobbed by girls, but none of them suited, because they were all, he said, of the fanner variety and knew nothing of making cornbread and biscuits.

"I expect to reach New York about in twenty-seven days," McRill said to The World's correspondent. "After a short stay there I will set out for San Francisco, and expect to beat the cross-continent record of Edward Payson Weston. I think I can hike from the Atlantic to the Pacific in sixty-five days."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks and sympathy showed to us by our neighbors and friends for their beautiful floral tributes at the illness and death of our beloved infant son and grandson, Harry Halcott.

"Ask the Man Who Owns One"

POOR PLACE TO HIDE MONEY

French Peasant Now Convinced That Shotgun is Unreliable as a Bank of Deposit.

The ingenuity of French peasants in hiding money has surpassed itself in the case of a man near Lorient who received a 1,000 franc note and a 50 franc note in payment for produce. He hid them in the muzzle of his double-barreled shotgun, believing that would be the last place thieves could search for money.

He made a mistake, however, in not taking his wife into the secret. A neighbor called a few days later, in the absence of the man of the house, and asked for the loan of the gun to get a hare.

The hare escaped and when the peasant came in that evening his wife remarked that the neighbor must be a very bad shot.

"Why?" the peasant asked.

"Because he used both charges of your gun in a hare without hitting it."

"My shotgun?" inquired the peasant with a gasp, at the same time making for the corner where the weapon hung.

The club owner of the department of Mockham will have to decide the delicate point of how whether the neighbor is responsible for the loss of the 1,200 francs.

Few Slang Phrases Lost.

The leniency with which some school teachers look on the use of slang, as reported in various interviews, may shock those of an age to have secured their idea of correct English from the McGuffey series of readers. It is true that the selections composing those readers were of an era wherein the language was at variance with what is heard today. It may have been stilted, but it did not corrupt the mind of the pupil. In fact, many persons got from the old fifth and sixth readers their knowledge of good literature. There was not a word resembling slang in the books.

It is true that slang is expressive. That is why it is used. Yet much of it quickly passes out of use because it is overworked. Few words suffer like fate, though occasionally under stress of circumstances a word of creditable origin is repeated to the point where it becomes necessary to discard it because
